

COMMUNITY HOUSING

SITE:

A city which has shown organic pattern of development since ancient time. The site is located in the core area of the city hence the context becomes a major concern while designing. The site should have its individual identity at the same context should also be considered.

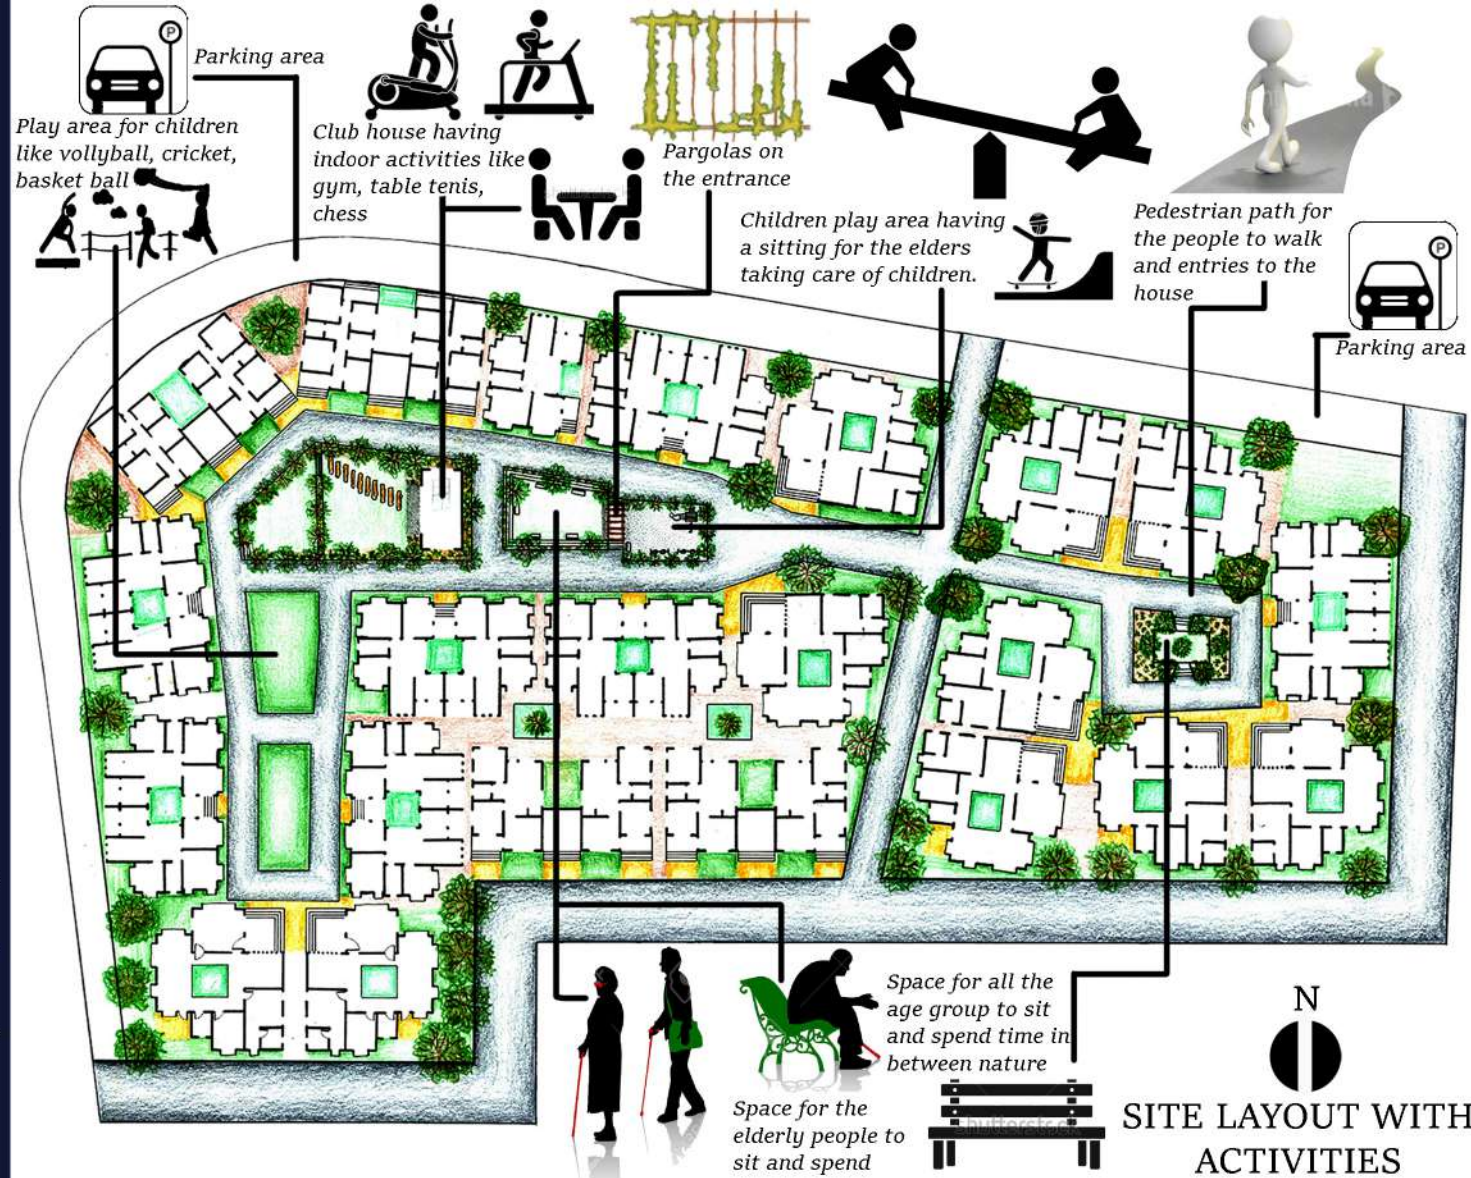

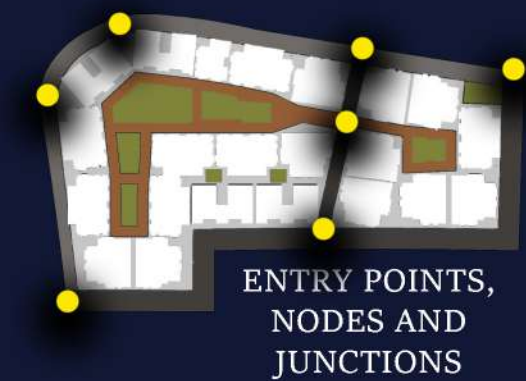

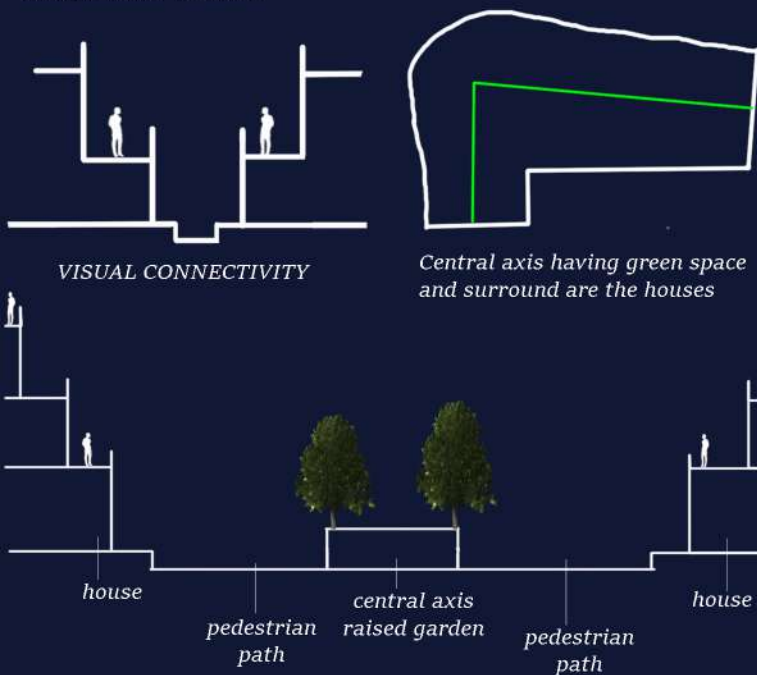

STUDIO OBJECTIVE:

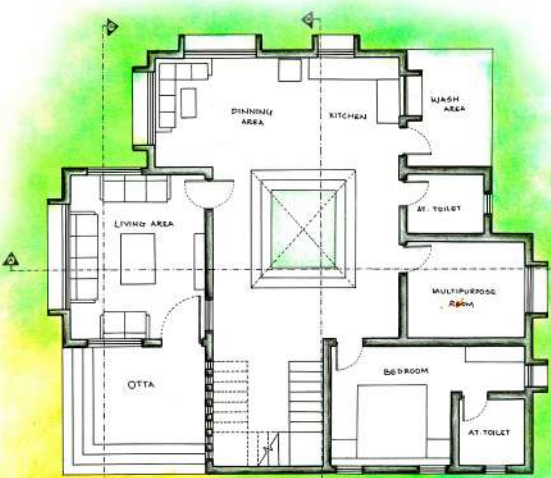

A community housing forms a major part of the city fabric. It represents the growth and development of a city from past till date, giving an overview of how the community evolved from a given time period. The site has a temple complex on one side, which forms a strong context for the design.

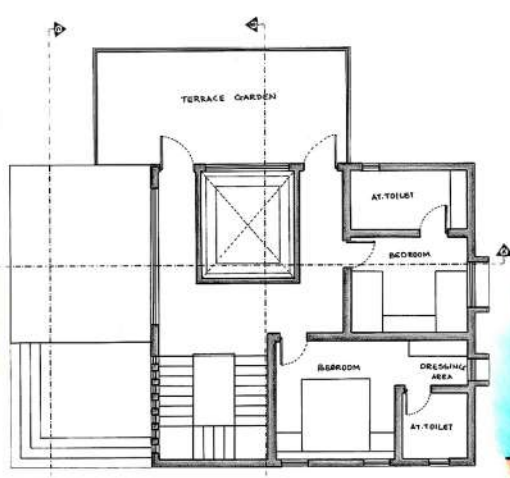

CONCEPT:

The idea is to create maximum amount of open space on the site by giving green spaces surrounding the site and even in the central axes. And even incorporating small courts in the houses. This is to connect the nature with the humans. There is also a visual connectivity in between the houses and some houses also share a common wall.
